COUNTRY LIFE. The New York Evening Post has broad ed an idea for in fring it practicable and easy for people to live in the country, withant being at erest expense, by clubbing together and establishing a suit of homes or a single halding or in a number of buildings. It is believed that the club plan can be care fied out in this respect as well as others in which it is successful. Families, lowing each their own brane, may yet live in comfort and at comparatively light expense for serrants and attendance, while exempt from many of the peopleylties and troubles that attend house keeping in the city,

As so in as the suggestion is made, the proprietor of Hagleswood, N. J., puls that establishment into the market, and we doubt not that the magnificent building and exists for the negligible dish of homes and home camberts, and if this is a practicable pier, the desire of a true home which so many have vainly in-iniged, will be met in the instances of great numbers who will gladly embrace the opportunity.

Paris from almost every part of France, year, The trade and meanfactures of Lyons were paralyzed by a variety of causes, in which the uncertainty prevailing as to the political future had no small share. Hunger and desfiltition were shaking sad havoe among the operatives of Nantes, Rouen and Roubaix, and even in Bordeaux, where the mildness of the climate does away with one cause of suffering, the destination was plainly manifest. So dense are the throngs of famished operatives that besiege the Hotel de Ville, clainoring for bread or employment, that the guards had to be doubled. At Lille, starvation is cadenic, and in Paris the distress was very great, but private and public benerolence was more active.

A Paris correspondent tel's an anecdote of Rosa Bouleur and a little girl, daughter of a friend, to whom the artist was much attached. The child had acquired a habit, in which she persisted in  $\max$  making  $\pi$  series of disfiguring grimaces, constantly putting her fingers in her mouth, puffing out her the ka and even bringing her tongue into play in the service of her peculiar line of disobedience. Naturally every means of care was tried, but in vain. The child only grimaced the more. M'lle Bonheur, unknown to her, sketched eath separate contertion, adding a comic expression to the feattures but perfectly preserving the likeness. Western democrats say they can't sup port the President's general policy, because he agrees with McCulloch in financial matters. A bitter feeling on this question is growing up here between eastern and western democrats. Pendleton writes to one of his Washington friends that the party must advocate more greenbacks, and the payment of bonds with them. New York and Pennsylvania democrats in Congress revolt at this. Doalittle admits privately that the democratic prospects have been darkened lately. He is gloomy over the result of the change in New Hampshire,
